

Jude Horrill

Communicator, Change agent

Jude Horrill is Head of Communications for Global Technology, Services and Operations at ANZ bank, responsible for communications across Australia, New Zealand and Asia Pacific.

A senior executive with over 20 years' experience in communications, change, marketing, and project management in public and private sector organisations in Australia and overseas, Jude has also worked as a consultant.

With expertise in executing change, transformation, and corporate communications programs, Jude's industry experience includes technology; financial services; sustainability/corporate responsibility; environmental services; tourism; education; and broadcast media.

Jude is passionate about change programs, and has managed the communications for large scale programs such as core banking conversions, company restructures, mergers and acquisitions, off-shoring, and social marketing for behaviour change campaigns.

For Jude, inspiring change stems from the self. This is reflected in how she mentors women in Technology and Operations to achieve their goals. Coaching women to be confident, daring to be different, and not asking for permission is part of her approach.

Jude holds a Graduate Diploma in Management, a Graduate Diploma in Performing Arts, and a Bachelor of Arts Degree.
